Travel information from airport to hotel and to the meeting

Arriving by plane

Moscow's three main airports are Sheremetyevo located in the north west, Domodedovo in the south east and Vnukovo in the south west.

DOMODEDOVO AIRPORT (DME)

Getting to and from Domodedovo is remarkably easy. Aeroexpress trains link to/from Paveletskiy Station (Paveletskaya metro - green and circle lines), which runs on the hour every hour, takes just over forty minutes, and costs under $15. The journey time is 45 minutes. <http://www.domodedovo.ru/en/>

SHEREMETYEVO AIRPORT (SVO)

Aeroexpress trains go from here to the Belorusskaya station. The journey time is 35 minutes. Qtel. (+7) 495 578 65 65, www.svo.aero .

The Aeroexpress train is by the far the fastest and most reliable way to get in to the city centre, dropping passengers off at the metro circle line. Night time arrivals (the Aeroexpress is closed between 00:30 and 05:00) will be at the mercy of taxi drivers so it is advisable to pre-book a taxi or transfer, to save yourself being ripped o by the touts. Qtel. (+7) 800 700 33 77, www.aeroexpress.ru.

TAXIS

Taxis in Moscow can be relatively cheap compared to other Western capitals. If you phone a legitimate taxi company, you'll be quoted an exact price for the journey. (Aprx.1300, 00 Rubl)

CUSTOMS

For most travellers leaving Russia you will just need to go to the GREEN (nothing to declare) channel and you do NOT need to complete the 'Customs and Currency Declaration Statement' upon arrival or departure (unless you are carrying thousands of dollars in cash with you).

MONEY

The national currency is the rouble (Rbl). Banknotes come in denominations of 50, 100, 500, 1,000 and 5,000. Rouble coins come in 1, 2, 5 and 10Rbl. There are 100 kopeks to a rouble and kopek coins come in 5, 10 and 50. It's illegal to pay in dollars or euros. You can nd ATMs at most metro stations, banks and large hotels.
